Government and Law Enforcement Training Programs from Advanced Concept Research

Government Employee Training Series

The following programs provide both a thorough orientation to government employment for new employees as well as insightful refresher training for experienced employees.

Customer Service

12 min / # 22943G / DVD Price $425

Shows what it takes for government agencies to provide good customer service to the public and to fellow staff members.

Dealing With Difficult Citizens

10 min / # 22945G / DVD Price $425

Follows five difficult situations government staff members have faced in the past from the beginning of the incident to its successful conclusion: how to assess the situation, how to position yourself, how to interact with the other person, how to take control of the situation.

Government Ethics

11 min / # 22941G / DVD Price $425

Examines the ethical principles common to all government codes of ethics. Through realistic situations, new employees learn the ethical practices expected of them, and experienced employees are questioned about how well they are still meeting those expectations.

Included conflict-of-interest topics are: handling confidential information, favouritism, seeking special privileges, use of government property, doing government business with companies in which they have a financial interest, outside employment and accepting gifts.

Professional Conduct

11 min / # 22942G / DVD Price $425

New employees see what it takes to be a professional staff member, and experienced employees are asked questions to see if they are still the professional they think they are.

The examined topics include: being law abiding, being businesslike, respecting government property, being sober, being moral, being honest, having a professional demeanor and why it is important to obey legitimate orders.

Preventing Accidents

10 min / # 22944G / DVD Price $325

While new employees are learning what every government employee must do to prevent work-related injuries, experienced employees are asked if they are still doing what they should be doing like: knowing emergency escape procedures, where fire extinguishers and first aid kits are located, always wearing required protective equipment, consistently paying attention to good housekeeping so spills and materials on the floor do not cause slips and falls.

New Municipal Employee Orientation Training

The following topics are the result of a nationwide study of municipal orientation practices. Produced in cooperation with seven different cities, they provide the first ever realistic audio-visual orientation training of benefit to all cities from the largest to the smallest. This series is similar to the Government Employee series, but was designed for city and new employee orientation, not refresher training.

Ethics

12 minutes / # M22941 / DVD Price $395

Though codes of ethics for different cities may emphasize different ethical concerns through realistic situations. New employees are introduced to the ethical principles common to all city codes.

Standards of Conduct

12 minutes / # M22942 / DVD Price $395

In this program new employees learn that the citizens expect their cities to be run efficiently and professionally. Through realistic scenarios, new employees learn that to be a professional staff member, they must be a law abiding citizen and must understand what it means to display a professional demeanor.

Customer Service

11 minutes / # M22943 / DVD Price $395

In this program new city employees learn the importance of giving basic respect to each person they deal with, and the importance of being open and pleasant and truthful and sincere. They learn to create a positive atmosphere, and see the value of being calm, patient, consistent and helpful.

They learn the importance of minimizing unnecessary frustration, the value of responding to requests in a timely manner and the necessity of learning their job completely in order to be an informed public servant.

Preventing Accidents

10 minutes / # M22944 / DVD Price $395

Explains what every new city employee must do to prevent work-related injuries, like learning emergency escape procedures, knowing where fire extinguishers and first aid kits are located, always wearing any required protective equipment and consistently paying attention to good housekeeping so spills and materials on the floor do not cause slips and falls. In addition the program emphasizes the importance of reporting unsafe conditions like loose tiles and floor boards, exposed wires, boxes of materials piled too high and equipment that has deteriorated to a level where it might pose a danger.

Dealing With Difficult Citizens

10 minutes / # M22945 / DVD Price $395

This program gives new city employees validated techniques for calming emotionally charged situations successfully. The program follows five difficult situations city employees have faced in the past from the beginning of the incident to its successful conclusion, and includes explanations of how to assess the situation, how to position yourself, how to interact with the other person, and how to slowly take control of the situation. Obviously, there are no guarantees when it comes to dealing with difficult people, but the time tested tactics shown in this program have saved a lot of city staff members from a lot of problems for a lot of years.
